AMPLIFYING YOUR DIGITAL FLUENCY

The Digital Skills Organisation (DSO) and Skill Finder have partnered to offer employers and employees an easy way to identify digital skills gaps and find the best courses to provide them with new practical digital skills. Using an assessment program developed by DSO called SkillUP users can find it easier to get a free customised training program to identify the right courses for them to digitally upskill.

There are over 3000 courses listed on Skill Finder in 13 categories, including computer basics, digital marketing, keeping your computer secure, coding and many more backed by big players in the tech sector like Google, Adobe, Canva, Microsoft and Atlassian.

This is providing very worthwhile for many companies, such as TalentRise. “Sadly, young people today are facing many barriers to finding employment, with the pandemic adding extra challenges to their lives, amongst other issues. Because of this, partnering with DSO to upskill our young people has been and will be fundamental to the success of young people in our program finding or sustaining employment in 2022,” Saskia Hamilton, Youth Program and Communications Manager, TalentRise.
